AMERICAN YOUTH

TRAINING FOR VICTORY

SHORTRIDGE HIGH SCHOOL
ANNUAL 1945
INDIANAPOLIS INDIANA

FOREWORD

The Class of 1945 is unique in one respect. It is the first class which has been able to put itself wholeheartedly into training for victory. Since our first semester at Shortridge, our purpose has been to speed that day when our boys would win the victory and return to a world of peace and security.

However, we have realized that this world of peace and security is not just for the asking. It was our duty to prepare ourselves for the problems following the armistice. We want not merely a victory in arms; we must have a permanent victory in establishing the peace.

So we have trained ourselves. We have realized that more than physical strength is necessary to build a lasting peace. We have tried to gain knowledge and, what is more important, the ability to use that knowledge with good judgment and intelligence. We hope that in some way we have acquired this ability.

A TRUE SHORTRIDGER . . .

For the better part of a half century, Miss Mary Anne McCoy has given to the service of Shortridge her heart, her mind, and her hands.

Because of her loyalty and faithfulness to our school down the years, because of her continuous generosity in giving so much time to aid students with any problem, no matter how small, and because of her extraordinary patience and kind understanding in contacts with pupils and faculty, we, the Seniors of 1945, dedicate our Annual to Miss Mary Anne McCoy.

. . . AND HER RESPONSE

This evidence of your esteem and affection will be treasured in my mind and heart to the enrichment of my life. We have a share in the pattern of Shortridge, the very warp and woof of it, woven patiently throughout the years by many artisans. Into the fabric have gone the devotion and loyalty of faculty and students, pride in achievements, and memories of happy associations. These shall bind us to one another and to those who in the future shall come to know and love our Shortridge.

Mary Anne McCoy

MARY ANNE McCOY—

“ 'Twas her thinking of others made you think of her.”

. . . IN OUR DAILY SCHOOL LIFE is often reflected the training which will enable us to take our places in the world as intelligent citizens and to play well our part, small though it may be, in establishing the peace.

SHORTRIDGE LIFE

DR. HULL and

During the past year Dr. Hull has served as chairman of the Indiana committee of high school principals and superintendents which is cooperating with the United States Armed Forces Institute. The committee has outlined principles and procedures to be used in determining credit for military experience not only for graduates but also for those who have not completed their high school courses. Service men and veterans receive academic credit for specialized training received in the armed forces; and if they happen to be high school graduates, the credit is recorded on the high school record so that it can later be used for college credit.

Dr. Hull also acts in an advisory capacity for boys and parents concerning opportunities in the armed services as well as opportunities for training available at Shortridge. He has likewise been the "guiding hand" in planning for improved training in courses available at Shortridge, especially in regard to government examinations.

These duties of Dr. Hull are merely "extras"; that is, they are in addition to his essential job of receiving and holding the teaching staff to train Shortridgers. However, they are evidence of his personal interest in all who have attended Shortridge.

ADMINISTRATIVE STAFF

Joel W. Hadley, Shortridge vice-principal, works with Dr. Hull in helping boys to prepare their courses at Shortridge so that they may accelerate their programs and graduate earlier. He assists in Senior guidance. He also aids in arranging for former Shortridgers to earn credits through the Armed Forces Institute. By far one of the most important of his tasks, however, is acting as one of the "Shortridge disciplinarians." Thus he helps Shortridgers to learn an important lesson in life—obedience.

One of the most influential jobs of Theodore Van Voorhees, Shortridge assistant principal, is the encouraging of boys to take the best advantage of their opportunities. He attempts to make it possible for them to remain at school as long as possible, so that they will be better prepared for the future.

As head of the Shortridge summer school, Enoch Burton helped standardize government tests for the use of the Army Institute. These tests are used to determine credit made by students while in the armed forces. The summer school itself made it possible for students to continue their education in summers, and thus prepare sooner for service in industry or in the armed forces, or for continuing their education.

Fitting the Individual into the World through Skillful Guidance

With the constant attention to the individual needs of the student, the Guidance Department has proved itself to be an invaluable part of the Shortridge program. By a careful study of present-day requirements and trends, the department is constantly helping students to plan or revise their four-year course of study.

Guidance directors act only as advisers to students. After a pupil chooses his own program, he discusses his choice with his adviser to find out whether or not he is able to take such a course.

An adviser never plans a student's program. He merely assists him in choosing a course of study that will best meet the pupil's personal educational and vocational needs. The class advisers are always available to students who need guidance and to parents who wish to talk over their children's problems.

Having its beginning with a School Problems class created several years ago, guidance work at Shortridge has developed rapidly and significantly. With Claude M. Keesling as director, the Guidance Department was organized in November, 1943, with eight advisers, two for each class level.

Counter clockwise from the upper right-hand corner: Miss Dorothy Dipple supervises a home room besides acting in the capacity of a freshman adviser. Senior guidance director, Miss Dorothy Peterson, talks over Senior problems with Susie Murray and Joanne Reese. Discharged veteran Dick Griffith discusses his future program with Don R. Knight, war counselor. A group of psychology students listen to Lester Groth explain the Kuder test. Claude Keesling, head of the Guidance Department, also serves as a sophomore adviser. Phyllis Augustin, guidance assistant, chats with Hiram Hensel, Miss Ruth Lewman, and Miss Dale Waterbury, all class advisers. Mrs. Nell Merrick Thomas aids Elizabeth Koons with her program, while Barbara Bruning, a department assistant, files cards. A group of Senior girls interested in Eastern colleges discuss different schools with Miss Minnie Lloyd, college boards adviser. At the special vocational bookshelf, found in the Shortridge library, Kenneth Peterman, vocational guidance director, reads advice to Pete Sofios.

Linguists, Historians —

By studying literature of American patriotism and idealism, Shortridge pupils are attempting to understand and appreciate their American heritage. Through reading and discussion they gain experience in feeling a personal sense of responsibility for preserving that which is good, in understanding the people of other nations, and in planning for a better post-war world. In the field of oral and written composition English students are striving to organize and express their thoughts clearly and accurately. In journalism they gain further practice in concise writing, and in speech classes they acquire additional training in presenting their ideas effectively.

The Shortridge History Department, by providing background information, has been helping students to understand the present world situation. Through factual material, history teachers have stressed the experiences following World War I, a comprehension of this war's issues, and developments brought about by the present conflict. Thus are presented the problems that may confront us in the future and the importance of planning now for solving them. The fundamental goal of the department has been to assist Shortridgers to achieve knowledge of the past and present, in order to gain wisdom in helping to plan victory.

This must be a hard assignment for the World I's. Liz Armstrong sneers at the blackboard, and Jean Ann Eates looks breathless.

Ah, ah, ah. This is a history test, boys, not a co-operative lesson. Mark Rhoads still maintains that two heads are better than one. How about it, Miss Turner?

It's all Greek to them, but they are surviving it. And with a smile, too. Look at Marcet Gribben's beaming expression.

Most of the people in this eighth hour Latin class seem to be rocking their chairs. End-of-the-day relaxation, no doubt.

"Foreign Languages for Global War and Global Peace" was the ideal stressed by the Modern Language Department this year. With America's waging war over the entire globe, the ability to speak and understand foreign languages has become a necessity to our nation. Not only in the present world will people need to be conversant with the languages of our allies and enemies, but also in the post-war world it will be essential that men and women be sensitive to the thoughts and ideals of foreign peoples. For any kind of international understanding, international communication is vital.

Despite emphasis upon modern languages, Latin and Greek have ranked as important subjects. Men and women with minds trained in accuracy and logic will be needed after the war as leaders to establish and maintain a peace fair to all nations. Sound training in Latin and Greek has taught students to be observant, discriminating, and accurate. By reading outstanding masterpieces of peoples on whose civilizations our own rests, pupils have acquired a sympathetic appreciation of human emotions, frailties, and reactions.

Jody Gutzwiller grimaces for the birdie, but Marilyn Jones and Nancy Owens disregard the camera to continue their Spanish—it says here.

than the supply, and the wages paid these embryo chemists exceed those formerly paid to college graduates. For these courses, the student must have an excellent understanding of standard solutions and be able to make any kind of a concentration. The teachers of the Chemistry Department do not attempt to teach industrial methods of analysis. Each commercial laboratory has its own special procedures. The department aims to develop students who are hard working, honest with results, and able to follow instructions.

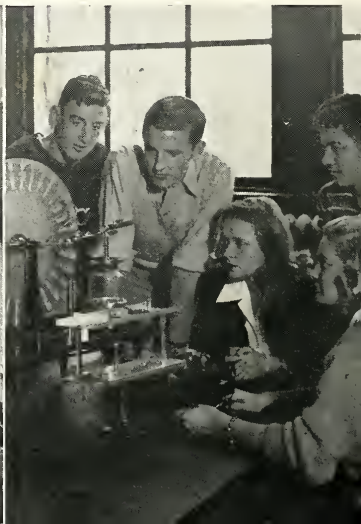

Chem II's are busily working. Jack Pruitt seems happy about the whole procedure.

A radio pupil receives a message while his partners look on.

Several physics students tinker with the Winhurst electrical device.

Chemists, Physicists

Aeronautics and electronics have been added to the curriculum of the Shortridge Physics and Chemistry Departments this year as a preparation for the scientific specialization which is one of the developments of the present war. In aeronautics, members of the Physics Department attempt to present to their pupils the mechanical side of aviation. Electronics gives basic training for radio and radar. Although a product of the war, radar, so scientists predict, will become highly developed in the future.

For two years the Shortridge Chemistry Department has been offering Chemistry III and IV as special courses in semi-micro qualitative and quantitative analysis. The purpose of the courses is to teach the best students the basic theory of solutions and skill in using modern laboratory technique. However, because of the demand for skilled laboratory workers in chemistry laboratories of the city, the course now serves also as a special training center for many of the city's chemical concerns. Laboratory jobs of every description await these students upon graduation.

The demand for trained technicians is greater

Biologists, Physiographers

Many a boy or girl going out of Shortridge into an army training course has felt the value of a preliminary acquaintance with the wind and cloud, some practice in map reading, and knowledge of leaves and insects.

Because they provide a foundation of personal interest, the members of the Biology - Physiography Department feel that the courses of their department are, in a sense, even more valuable than advanced studies. True, all of these things are taught in highly specialized courses, and laboratory technique is acquired under pressure. But to have given girls and boys the interest which carries them on to become hospital technicians and bacteriologists, or nurses and doctors so needed during both war and peace, is a distinct contribution to the future.

During the past few years the department has been receiving many letters which include lists of birds seen on some far island of the Pacific, an account of strange fish or rocks and vegetation, or a request for books on stars and animals. Through this correspondence, the department members know that their most significant work in training for victory is the heightened morale of members of the armed forces who are learning to see and appreciate the things and creatures of the world around them.

Since the basis of any satisfactory relationship exists in similar interests, a study of the flora and fauna of other countries will inculcate an understanding among nations. Many travellers of the future, not necessarily scientists, will be interested in the geological, botanical, and zoological conditions of other nations. Moreover, nature study, unlike governmental and social institutions, will help insure stability.

Business Workers

Commerce students have been helping the war effort through part-time vocational work, and, at the same time, they have been gaining valuable experience in the business world. Insurance companies, industrial concerns, Civil Service, the F.B.I., and many other organizations have employed Shortridge students. Through commercial courses, pupils attain techniques, skills, habits, ideals, attitudes, and appreciation necessary for successful living. These students have realized that a thorough preparation in business and related courses is essential for those who are to meet successfully the keen competition of the post-war period.

Mathematicians

A mechanical world requires a skilled mind trained for computation of numbers and intricate problems. The Mathematics Department of Shortridge sets a certain standard in arithmetic that all the boys of the school must meet. Before graduation they must pass a comprehensive mathematics examination. For all students the department offers courses that will enable them to meet the standard for leadership in industry and the armed forces. From elementary algebra to trigonometry, the student is taught to apply facts and to reason—vital points in an aggressive world.

Homemakers, Soldiers, Gymnasts

Giving girls a thorough training in problems that are always vital has been the aim of the Home Economics Department. Future homemakers have been taught how to select, prepare, and serve foods which will be attractive as well as nutritive. Clothing courses have helped girls to choose materials wisely and to make clothes that suit individual needs. Home economics students have also been learning how homes may be made more attractive and be run more smoothly. Personal qualities and sound physical and mental habits have been developed in girls through the department's work.

"Militarism for aggression!" has been the motto of many European nations. In the United States, however, and at Shortridge military training has emphasized a different theme—that of courtesy, a trait which will help establish a peaceful world.

As vital as the R.O.T.C. is the physical fitness program. The Athletic Department has impressed on the student the value of a strong, healthy body. Besides aiding in the development of good attitudes and habits, gymnastics has taught the art of relaxation, an important factor in the world of today and tomorrow.

The R.O.T.C. does more than march. Sgt. Riley holds an informal military discussion.

It's easy — if your arms are strong. And by Miss O'Hara's expression, these gals seem to be making the grade.

Artists, Musicians

Former and present Shortridge artists do their share in actual war work. Some are making production illustrations for the Douglass Aircraft Corporation. Camouflage and drafting for production are two more services rendered by those trained in the Art Department.

The department also sponsors art work done for training camps. This work is distributed through the Junior Red Cross. In addition to this, making war and reconnaissance maps is a major contribution.

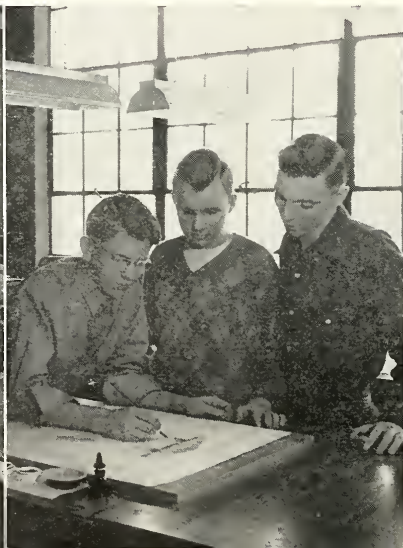

After the war, the task of reviewing the war may be done in a new way. Experienced Shortridge artists are making drawings and paintings which will give a true-to-life account of World War II.

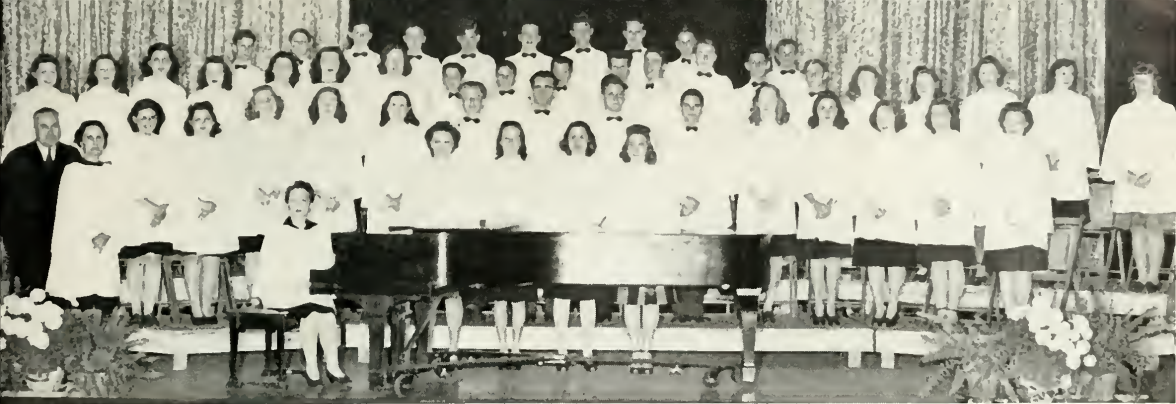

The return of wounded soldiers from the front presents many problems, both in their periods of hospitalization and in the time when they return and begin to adjust themselves to civilian life. To keep their minds occupied during relaxation periods, art work created especially for the soldiers' enjoyment is being prepared by art students. Also the department has helped, in its own way, to bring us nearer victory. Under its sponsorship, students have drawn posters and cards which illustrate and promote the war activities campaigns. Similar posters may be made during the post-war period to spread the ideas of world-wide peace.

"Now that our country is at war, the importance of pure music and all the fine arts is much greater than ever. Music is the voice of civilization and we must not lose interest in the very things we are fighting to preserve. Instead of neglecting or slighting pure music, we should cultivate it more earnestly in the months that are to come. To do this will be to fill one of the highest aims of patriotism."

- Dr. William Lyon Phelps

* Music is the art of expression that can be used to bring different nationalities together in kinship of charity and mutual understanding. By studying the music of other countries, students acquire a knowledge of their customs, environment, and emotional reactions, thereby gaining respect and an appreciation for the achievements of others.

Music students are taught the value of music as an avocation and are urged to study the principles of construction that underlie all good music. Then they not only will enjoy the melody and emotional beauty, but also will appreciate it from an intellectual standpoint.

The opportunity for frequent public performance gives poise, self-confidence, and courage. The Shortridge Music Department, realizing the power and inspiration of music, has hoped to develop character, high morale, and appreciation, and to assist in the establishment and continuance of world-wide peace.

SENIORS

A LAST FAREWELL

Before the day of parting comes,
Before we take our places in this new and changing world,
Before the echoes of our voices die away,
Before the hand of time shall close this chapter of our lives,

We'll walk once more through busy, friendly halls,

Through stately entrance doors,
To imprint cherished scenes upon our minds

And to bid a last farewell to everyone.
These loyal friends and happy days are not to be forgotten.

For they will keep our hearts warm and vibrant
With memories of our youth.

JUNIOR MINUTES

After the Junior Class election on November 23, 1944, the following officers were announced: Bob Klein, president; Ann Kennedy, vice-president; Phyllis Jay, secretary; Louis Hensley, treasurer; and Joan Carey, Vaudeville chairman.

At an officers' meeting Marge Brink was selected to edit the Vaudeville program, and Jack Henderson was chosen as advertising manager.

On February 11 and 12 the class presented its Junior Vaudeville. An act based on the "Gay Nineties," entitled "When Mom Was a Belle and Dad Was a Dandy," took top honors both nights. The act was under the direction of Joan Pile, Neal Randolph, and Bill King, who were the co-chairmen. Winners of the individual awards were Mary Lynch and Robbie Robinson on Friday night, and Joan Pile and John Rawlings on Saturday night.

Two one-thousand dollar War Bonds were purchased by the class with Vaudeville proceeds. These bonds were presented to the school.

Respectfully submitted,

Phyllis Jay

Secretary.

CLASS DAY OFFICERS: Bill Barrett, will-maker; Mary Jo DeVatz, prophet; Phyllis Jay, historian; Louis Hensley, giftorian.

SENIOR WEEK

Senior-itis, if there is such a thing, will hit its peak during Senior Week, the week created especially for Senior enjoyment. It will begin unassumingly, June 7, and after a series of programs, some serious, some not so serious, the week will be brought to a triumphant conclusion as more than 500 Seniors live through the moment they have been waiting for — the awarding of the diplomas.

On June 7, Seniors will go to their classes for the last time, obtain a $.75 refund on their quarters of the last four years (their lockers), and roam the halls of their alma mammy for the last time as students.

Vesper services will be held Sunday, June 10, in Caleb Mills Hall for Seniors, their parents, and their friends.

Seniors will attend the last formal meeting of the Class of 1945 on June 11, when they will receive report cards, caps and gowns, and tickets for Class Day and Commencement.

Tuesday, June 12, will be featured by the last combined effort, not necessarily coordinated, of the class—Class Day. Historian Phyllis Jay will relate the story of the last four years at Shortridge, after which Mary Jo DeVatz will bring out her crystal ball to predict the Seniors' future. The bequeathing of all noteworthy Senior possessions to underclassmen will be read by Will-maker Bill Barrett. Louis Hensley will attempt to give suitable gifts to various Seniors. Following this, the traditional Class Day stunt will be presented.

On June 13, Seniors will travel out to the Coliseum at 9:00 A.M. for Commencement rehearsal. At eight o'clock of the same evening, Seniors, attired in caps and gowns of royal blue, will start the processional to the strains of "Aida."

And after you get that diploma in your hand — well, Senior, you're on your own.

SENIOR MINUTES

*Betsy Ancker,
acting treasurer*

Election of officers, October 5, 1944, marked the beginning of the activities of the Senior Class of 1945. The successful candidates were Bill Myers, president; Peggy Yockey, vice-president; Perky Rogers, secretary; Bill King, treasurer; and Marge Brink, Annual editor. The president's cabinet, the Senior Home Room representatives, and the class officers formed the governing body of the class.

The class held their Christmas party on December 19. Santa Claus (Mr. Klopp) presented gifts to various Seniors. Entertainment was furnished by members of the faculty and student body.

Dr. Frank H. Sparks, president of Wabash College, spoke at the January Commencement, which was held in Caleb Mills Hall, January 24.

The Colors Committee chose fuchsia and blue for the class ribbons, which were distributed by the Home Room representatives.

The Senior Play, "Come Rain or Shine," was held March 23, under the able direction of Miss Eleanor Dee Theek.

Class Day officers, elected February 18, were Louis Hensley, gitorian; Phyllis Jay, historian; Bill Barrett, will-maker; and Mary Jo DeVatz, prophet.

The Commencement Committee was composed of Jim Arthur, Ruth Phillips, Ann Kennedy, Tom Gastineau, Betty Thompson, Norman Shortridge, and the class officers. Vesper services were held June 10, in Caleb Mills Hall. Seniors attended their last meeting, June 11. Class Day was June 12. Seniors of the Class of 1945 were graduated June 13 in the Coliseum.

Respectfully submitted,

Perky Rogers

Secretary.

Faculty Sponsors

Seniors regard Vice-Principal Joel W. Hadley as a particular friend, to whom many have gone for help and advice. As counselor for the Seniors, Mr. Hadley participated in the discussions at meetings of the Senior Home Room representatives, headed the June Commencement Committee, and approved appointments made by the class officers.

Also looking after the interests of the Seniors is Miss Dorothy Peterson, the Senior credits sponsor. Through Miss Peterson, all Seniors were certified for membership in the class. She was in charge of the January Commencement and helped with the planning for the June Commencement.

The Senior Party at Christmas time and the Class Day exercises were supervised by Miss Peterson, Miss Barbara Turner, Mrs. Henrietta Parker, and Mrs. Louise Steiger.

Mr. Hadley and Miss Peterson worked together on class organization in counting election votes of the Senior and Class Day officers.

As the Seniors grasp their diplomas and bid adieu to Shortridge on Commencement night, they will owe much to the Senior sponsors for their loyal and unselfish service.

The Annual sponsors helped greatly to expedite an early completion of the 1945 Annual.

As the coordinator, Grady G. Stubbs had the job of keeping the whole production running smoothly. He also was literary sponsor.

The liner sponsors, Mrs. Virginia Lewis, Miss Margaret Montgomery, and Mrs. Louise Steiger, worked with their individual groups of girls to bring about a speedy completion of liners.

H. H. Seimers was taking shots with his camera as early as November, and most of the pictures in the book may be attributed to his work and that of Robert C. Grubbs.

Arthur Shull and Robert Black handled the business end of the publication. They kept track of subscriptions and money, and balanced the books.

The general layout and art work was under the supervision of Miss Jane Messick. Under her the Annual art class completed their work to meet the early deadline.

Joel W. Hadley, as sponsor of the Senior Class, conferred with all Annual advisers and kept in close touch with the business and publicity managers to insure the successful production and distribution of this year's book.

Honor Society

The Shortridge chapter of the National Honor Society held its first organization meeting of the school year on Wednesday, March 14. This group is selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership, character, and service. The club, consisting of eighty-four Senior members, elected Philip Bonham president and Mary Frances Dittrich secretary-treasurer. Members of the society were divided into groups one, two, and three, sponsored by Mrs. Blanche Rawlings, Mrs. Elizabeth Helm, and Miss Dorothy Dipple, respectively. These groups elected Bob Beam, Mary Alice Lindgren, and Carolyn Smith as vice-presidents.

It was decided at this meeting that this year's dues and the money left last year in the treasury would be added to the George Buck Memorial Scholarship Fund. This fund, which has been added to in several ways, was started in May, 1941, by the Honor Society. The main project of the Honor Society this year was the completion of the records of Honor Society members who graduated in the Class of 1934. This work, supervised by Mrs. Danna Huffman, was completed by the members during conference periods.

Miss Minnie Lloyd is acting as sponsor of the Honor Society in the absence of Mrs. Hope Nevitt. Miss Dipple is acting as group sponsor in the absence of Mrs. Gertrude Weathers.

In May, Joel W. Hadley took over the sponsorship of the group.

Building the Set.

Cast.

The houselights dimmed, the music faded away, and the curtain rose on “Come Rain or Shine,” the 1945 Senior Play. Written by Marri-jane and Joseph Hayes, the three-act comedy was presented Friday, March 23, by a Senior cast of fifteen members. Leading roles were taken by Mary Jo DeVatz and Thornton Klos.

The plot dealt with the trials and tribulations of the Graysons, an average American family on vacation. A quadrangle love affair, problems of a play within the play, and Mr. Grayson's trouble with his willful employer are all solved in the final act.

The members of the cast in the order of their appearance were Mrs. Grayson (Mary Frances Dittrich), Glenn Grayson, Jr. (Neal Randolph), Mr. Grayson (Herman Wichser), Jac Grayson (Mary Jo DeVatz), Helen (Suzanne Pearson), Mrs. Sparks (Laurel McPherson), Irean Holden (Mary Alice Lindgren), Agnes Holden (Phyllis Jay), Dan Lyons (Thornton Klos), Rosemary March (Jody Carey), Dick Clements (Paul Sweany), Julia March (Mary Louise Giles), Ella Stone (Margaret Medsker), Fred Murro (Fred Zried), and Ann Barry (Marilyn Patton).

Miss Eleanor Dee Theek, dramatics coach, and Patti McGinley, student director, directed the production. Phil Bonham was business manager. The heads of the production staff were the following: Geraldine Harman and Mary Isabel Hull, ushers; Ann Lindstaedt, publicity; Mary McClure and Ann Richardt, prompters; Thornton Klos, stage manager; Jay Meador, lights; Carol Thoms and Louise Jeffrey, make-up; Charlotte Follock, sounds; Bob Mintz, curtain; Paul Sweany, program editor and cover design; Walter French, house manager; Pat Bond and Phyllis Augustin, properties; and Vangie Andrews and Helen Dunlop, head properties. A pit orchestra selected from the Shortridge orchestra played during inter-missions.

Bluebelle — Uglyman

Ann Kennedy, Phil Bonham

"And now for the lucky couple! Now, what's that girl's name?", stalled J. B. King merrily at the decisive moment of the Bluebelle-Uglyman Dance on March 21. "Wait a minute. Did you say —yes, that's it—Ann Kennedy!" Then, to thunderous applause, curly-topped Ann stepped to the bandstand to claim the title of Shortridge's most popular girl. A few seconds later, friendly Phil Bonham was announced as the winner of the coveted Uglyman title. Jody Carey and Phyllis Jay were runners-up for Bluebelle, and Jack Brown and Bill Myers placed second and third, respectively, for Uglyman.

Friendly, perennially popular Bluebelle Ann was vice-president of the Junior Class and served as a Senior Home Room representative. The Eu-vola, "21," Jeep, and Gals Clubs proudly claim her membership. As business manager of the Senior Play and president of the Honor Society, quiet, reserved Uglyman Phil has his claim to fame. Outside school, he puts his money in the D.U.X. Club.

Other candidates were Betsy Ancker, Marge Brink, Pat Hartley, Barbara Larson, Lois Richardson, Perky Rogers, and Peggy Yockey. Other Uglyman candidates were Bill Hall, Lou Hensley, Lloyd Herr, John Hull, Bill Kegley, Jack Thompson, and Matt Walsh.

Annual Staff

Without the aid of a most dependable Annual staff, the year-book of 1945 would never have seen print. Overcoming the problems that arise in the production of a wartime Annual, the staff completed its work accurately and quickly to meet the early deadline this year.

Ann Lindstaedt headed a capable Literary staff, who prepared most of the copy in the book. Her staff included Joan Pile, Bernard Landman, Cici Hendricks, Phyllis Jay, Virginia Johnson, and Reasel Ashmore.

The liner staff, under the direction of Mary Frances Dittrich, brought about an amazingly speedy completion of liners. Mary McClure, Mary Isabel Hull, Carol Thoms, Susan Harger, Mary Louise Giles, Pauline Prather, Jean Tatman, Mary Lee Schell, Judy Slicer, and Lois Richardson made up this group.

All the art work in the book was in the competent hands of the Annual Art class. Under Art Editor Zelma Osborne and her assistant, Webber Smith, the art work was completed at an early date. Darrell Conner was responsible for the title page, the Armed Services layout, and the compasses throughout the book. The division pages were designed by the following: Lorene Elliott, Shortridge Life; Anita Diggle, Seniors; Richard Pratt, Webber Smith, and Sharon Collins, Sports; and Mary Lou Laughlin, Activities. Other members of the class who assisted with art and layout details were Peggy Armstrong, Janice Belcher, Priscilla Bender, Katherine Black, Wilberta Bohner, Annabelle Church, Peggy Gordon, Dorothy Harris, Jeanne Lindley, Bibiana Neal, Carol Olson, Sally Sentir, Beverly Simon, Pat Smith, and Jeanne Trulock.

The sports writeups in the publication may be accredited to Paul Goldstein, sports editor, Bob Mintz, and Lois Ramsey, girls' sports editor.

Matt Walsh was business manager, and he was assisted by Pat McGeary, who tallied sales, and Barbara Price. Working with Matt to promote sales was Peggy Mosiman, publicity manager.

In arranging schedules and new angles for pictures, Photography Co-editors Mary Jo DeVatz and Evangeline Andrews were an unsurpassable duo. Senior Pictures Editor Mary Catherine Brewer did an excellent job in getting Seniors down to the studio. She was aided by Patty Smith. Also on the photography staff was Bob Camp, who, although a Junior, lent his time and talents to taking many of the informal shots that appear in the book. Most of the basketball action pictures and several of the football action shots may be attributed to his work.

Anne Lytle and her Clubs staff, composed of Pat Lange, Neal Randolph, and Betsy Goodwin, tracked down the information on clubs, and with the help of several literary staff members prepared the write-ups. They spent much time in trying to find new ways to inject "punch" into their stories.

Editor-in-chief Marge Brink worked with all the staffs and tried to keep their work running as smoothly as possible.

ATHLETICS

"The best laid schemes o' mice and men gang aft agley." Perhaps this little dictum best characterizes the 1944 Shortridge pigskin campaign as a valiant, hard-fighting but inexperienced and outmanned Blue Devil outfit wound up a stormy season with four victories and five setbacks.

With Coach Tom Woods at the helm, after he had piloted the Satans to two undefeated seasons and two city crowns, the Demons gave promise of another great eleven in spring scrimmages, only to be plagued by a series of stunning losses. During the summer Shortridge's local titular aspirations were undeniably dealt a serious jolt when it was learned that redoubtable halfback Bob "Gip" Klein had donned a Marine uniform and stellar lineman Bernie Berger had enrolled at Indiana after completing graduation requirements in summer school. Also Coach Woods was further deprived of the services of Senior tackle Bob Thompson, who sustained a severe leg injury. Nevertheless, Bill Hall, Captain Jack Thompson, the lone regular holdover who was shifted to center, and John Zimmerman performed capably in the vacated roles. Other starters were ends Lloyd Herr, Lou Hensley, and Bill Myers, tackle John Hull, guards Dick Sutton and Jim Jordan, quarterback Tom Thompson, halfback Larry Stuart, and fullback Irving Ball.

The Satan gridders opened hostilities on September 22 by overwhelming Warren Central, 40-6. Halfback Remy McKean led the scoring parade with two touchdowns, followed by Irving Ball, Don Hueber, J. B. King, and Tom Gable with one apiece.

Continuing their winning ways, the Felixmen journeyed down to Southport a week later to vanquish the Cardinals, 6-0. Ball contributed the contest's lone score by knifing over in the first period.

Shortridge suffered its first reverse since November, 1941, the subsequent Friday night, as the Woodsmen invaded the Anderson stronghold, only to be repulsed, 20-7. It was only in the final frame, after several hard-driving Indian ball carriers had hammered across three touchdowns, that the Demons salvaged one six-pointer when Bill Hall skirted end.

The Satans dropped their second consecutive decision in a fortnight by bowing to Washington, 7-0, in a heart-breaking city series encounter. A 65-yard Shortridge drive in the last quarter bogged down on the two-yard stripe after the Continentals had tallied at the outset.

Next week-end's tilt saw the Demons hit the comeback trail up at Marion by downing the Giants, 27-13. Ace halfback Bill Hall spearheaded the assault by crossing the double chalk mark twice.

The Blues hung up their fourth and final triumph on October 30 by handing the visiting Crawfordsville club a 19-0 lacing. Hall again paced the victors with a brace of touchdowns. Remy McKean registered the other score.

On the following Friday afternoon, Shortridge's remaining hopes for city laurels went glimmering as Cathedral's potent Irish battered the Devils into submission by a 12-6 count. Tackle Johnny Hull gave the hosts a short-lived advantage in the opening chukker when he scooped up a blocked Irish punt and romped over. However, Cathedral's smooth-working offense bounced back and ripped across for counters in the first and third periods for the verdict.

Broad Ripple next applied the skids to the Satans by racking up a well-earned 28-14 conquest. The Rockets struck with uncoiled fury and shoved over three tallies in the first half. Shortridge retaliated after intermission with Larry Stuart reaching pay dirt on a beautiful reverse and Lou Hensley making a phenomenal pay-off catch in the end zone, but Ripple clinched the fracas with a fourth T.D. late in the game.

Tech's Greenclads dealt the crushing wallop to the Demon's campaign by overcoming the Blue Devils, 6-0, on a chilly November 20 afternoon. After a goal-line stand, just before the half, had averted an Eastside touchdown, the Techites launched a determined drive which paid off near the close of the third quarter. A final Satan bid via the air late in the waning seconds was thwarted by an interception as eleven Shortridge grid careers were brought to an inglorious conclusion.

Reserves

In preparing varsity material for the future, Coach Fred "Knut" Rouch guided his rugged reserves through a six-game season, emerging victorious three times, losing twice, and battling to one stalemate.

The season shoved off to a bad start as the "B's" lost their first encounter to the Irish reserves, 6-0, the Irish scoring in the final period.

On their next outing, the Rouchmen battled the Washington "B's" to a scoreless deadlock.

Finally, however, the Blues emerged in the winning column, downing the Broad Ripple reserves, 13-7. Jack Fuller scored the first marker on a line buck, and Paul Stone accounted for the other on a beautiful snake-hipped run back of an intercepted pass.

Next, they whitewashed the Southport Cardinal reserves, 19-0. Scoring were Dick Pratt on an 83-yard jaunt off right tackle, Joe Palmer on a wide end-run, and Don Goelzer on an intercepted pass runback of 50 yards.

However, the Big Green, led by rugged Ed Wiltsee, edged out the Rouchmen, 14-13. Following this setback, the Satan reserves completed their season by dropping Manual, 27-6.

Freshmen

That Shortridge will have powerful football teams in the next few years was indicated by the brilliant showing of the Freshman Football Team last fall. Coach Roy V. Aberson's lads held their opposition scoreless in five games, although they were held twice to scoreless ties. Their opponents were held to a total of eight first downs all season, as play dominated in enemy territory.

The Imps teed off by dropping the Washington frosh, 26-0. Ed Gasper scored in the first period on a pass from Chuck Keever; powerful full-back Evan Parker bucked for a score in the third; and Jack Leer and Keever hit pay dirt in the final canto. Leer also converted twice.

Keever led the way with two wide end runs for scores as the Abermen downed the Broad Ripple yearlings, 12-0.

In the next two games, the Blue Imps, unsuccessful in making their offense function, were held to scoreless stalemates by the Irish and Greenclad Rhinies.

However they snapped back into the winning column by annihilating the Southport freshmen, 22-0. Keever slashed across from the two. Shortly afterward, a Keever to Gasper aerial score clicked. Parker hit twice in the final half, and Harry McCormick ended the scoring with a 50-yard spurt.

The powerful line was dominated by ends Dudley Burge, Gene Rogers, and Bob Gruman; tackles Art Klein, Bob Ycunt, and Howard King; and guards Allen See, Bob Barnhart, and Bob Swan. Aggressive center Jim Horton was the outstanding performer on the Rhinie forward wall. Leading the backfield charges were Chuck Keever, Evan Parker, Ed Gasper, Jack Leer, Ralph Waddington, and Bob Hanna.

McKean skirts end to pick up needed yardage.

Trophy Awards

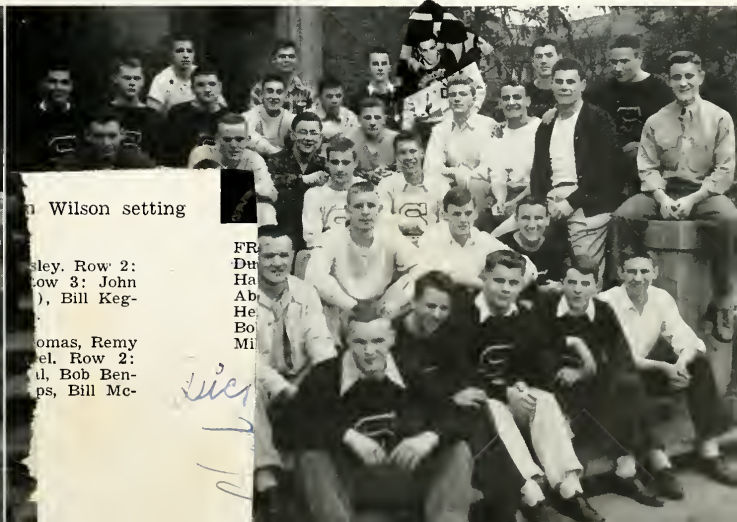

Jim Jordan, standout guard, was awarded the coveted Frank J. Skinner trophy for the most valuable player, while Captain Jack Thompson received the Herbert T. Wagner trophy, emblematic of high sportsmanship. A new award, the dual Lewis and William Skinner trophy, to be presented to the most improved back and linesman was given to halfback Bill Hall and tackle John Zimmerman.

Letter Winners

Coach Woods awarded 23 major letters to reward the leather-luggers. Those receiving the block "S" award were the following: Seniors, Jack Thompson, Dick Sutton, Bill Myers, Larry Stuart, John Hull, Jim Jordan, Bill Hall, John Zimmerman, Tom Thompson, Lloyd Herr, and Louis Hensley; Juniors, captain-elect Irving Ball, Art Fleck, Tom Gable, Remy McKean, Warren Bennett, Bill Reel, Ray Schakel, Bob Burnett, Dave Haggard, Don Hueber, and Don Hinkle; and Sophomore, J. BASKETBALL

Kenneth L. Petterman, astute Shortridge hoop mentor, guided his 1944-45 Satan cagers through a nineteen-game card, the Blue Devils concluding their campaign with a slate of fourteen wins and five losses. Following a winning but unimpressive start and a mid-season slump, the Demons finally hit their stride late in the season by copping their last five contests. Even though they bowed out of tourney play early, the Northsiders nevertheless were highly regarded in Hoosier hardwood circles and were capable of presenting formidable opposition to nearly any quintet in the state.

Coach Petterman wove his outfit around returning Senior lettermen Bill Kegley and Jack Brown, and Junior Tom Gable. Combining the experience of a previous year's campaigning at the pivot position with deceptive trickery, superlative tipping ability, and uncanny sniping, brilliant center Kegley proved to be the mainstay of the Satan attack as evidenced by the fact that he ranked second in the city scoring race and occupied a niche on the All-Sectional squad for the second consecutive year. Scrappy, dependable backboard man Brown, who handled a major share of the feeding, teamed with the stellar Gable, a versatile, straight-shooting performer, at the forward posts. This trio, averaging well over six feet in height, formed a fast, smooth-working combination under the bucket and produced almost all of the Blues' offensive punch. A pair of Seniors, speedy Lloyd Herr and glue-fingered Louis Hensley, capably filled the guard slots. Reliable reserve strength at either forward or center was furnished by big Johnny Hull, while guards Bob Wade and Nelson Gaddy entered into the milling frequently, especially toward the end of the season. Rounding out the first ten were Johnny Kroetz and Don Hinkle.

The Blues inaugurated net activities on November 29 by shading Greenfield, 28-26. Two more last-minute decisions over Lawrence Central and Noblesville occurred before Shortridge made its first home appearance successful with an authoritative 31-23 lacing of Southport. Bill Kegley's unerring accuracy at the charity stripe gave the Satans their fifth straight victory as the Devils spilled Shelbyville, 31-29.

However, Tech's potent Greenclads promptly snapped the Northsiders' winning streak in the annual holiday fracas. The rival fives battled nip and tuck during the first half, but after intermission the Demons fell apart and went down to a 42-31 defeat. But the undaunted Devils bounced back to the asset side of the ledger when, behind the phenomenal sharp-shooting of Kegley and Tom Gable, Shortridge overpowered Ben Davis, 48-36. Cathedral was the next victim to fall prey to "Pete's boys," the Irish losing by a 34-19 count.

A curtain raiser in a double-bill at the Butler Fieldhouse set the stage for sweet revenge as Lou Hensley tallied fourteen points to lead the Satans to a 34-28 trimming of last year's nemesis, Howe.

the pace, Anderson's Indians handed the Blue Devils their second setback by virtue of a 43-31 scalping. Two days later, a historic band of Broad Ripple's meteoric Rockets nosed out the Azure and White, 36-33, in a thriller at the Tech gym. A stingy Crawfordsville five then caught Shortridge on an off-night and emerged triumphant, 29-24.

A brace of conquests over out-of-town opponents ensued in quick succession, the Demons trouncing Martinsville, 42-27, and downing Greencastle's stubborn crew, 43-38. Subsequently the Satans polished off their ancient foe, Manual, 35-27, and gained their fourth win in a row at Lebanon's expense in a high-scoring 46-45 melee.

As Sectional time drew near and as the Blue bucketeers were rounding into peak form, Lady Luck once more frowned upon the 34th Street institution for the second straight year. The groans were audible in the Shortridge camp when it was learned that Satan ace Bill Kegley had sustained a serious ankle injury. The Devils, with a revamped line-up, edged out Washington, 36-34, to end the regular season.

In their initial tourney tilt, the Demons, forced to use the valiant but still ailing Kegley, overcame a first-half deficit to turn back a surprising Silent Hoosier squad, 36-28. Shortridge was eliminated from tournament competition in the Quarter Finals by Crispus Attucks, 30-28. The issue was decided in an overtime period after Tom Gable's push shot just before the gun had knotted the count.

All ten members of the Sectional squad were awarded letters for their efforts. They are Bill Kegley, Jack Brown, Tom Gable, Lloyd Herr, Louis Hensley, John Hull, Nelson Gaddy, Bob Wade, John Kroetz, and Don Hinkle. Bill Kegley won the coveted Underwood trophy as the most valuable varsity performer, while Jack Brown was named honorary captain.

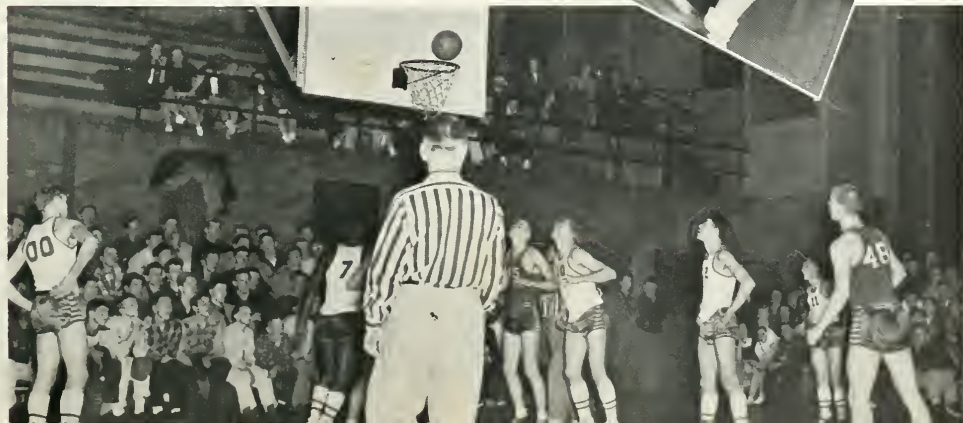

Swivel-hipped Kegley leaps high to snare a pass.

It's a bucket for the Blues, thanks to "Mac" Herr!

The ball trembles on the rim after Gable's toss from the charity stripe.

Reserves

Coach Paul E. Dill's reserve bucketeers finished an 18-game card with 15 won and 3 lost. The "B's" repertoire of victories included overtime thrillers with Ben Davis and Howe and a one-point victory over Manual, where Bob Benjamin's last second bucket saved the day. The Dillmen lost 2- and 1-point thrillers to Southport and Tech, respectively, and were swamped by the powerful Anderson reserves.

Nelson Gaddy, Don Hinkle, and Richard Dick led the squad the first half of the season, before Hinkle and Gaddy were moved up to varsity. Dick remained to team with Bob Benjamin, Ray Schakel, John Bain, Remy McKean, et al. Dick was named by Coach Dill for the Underwood trophy.

Freshmen

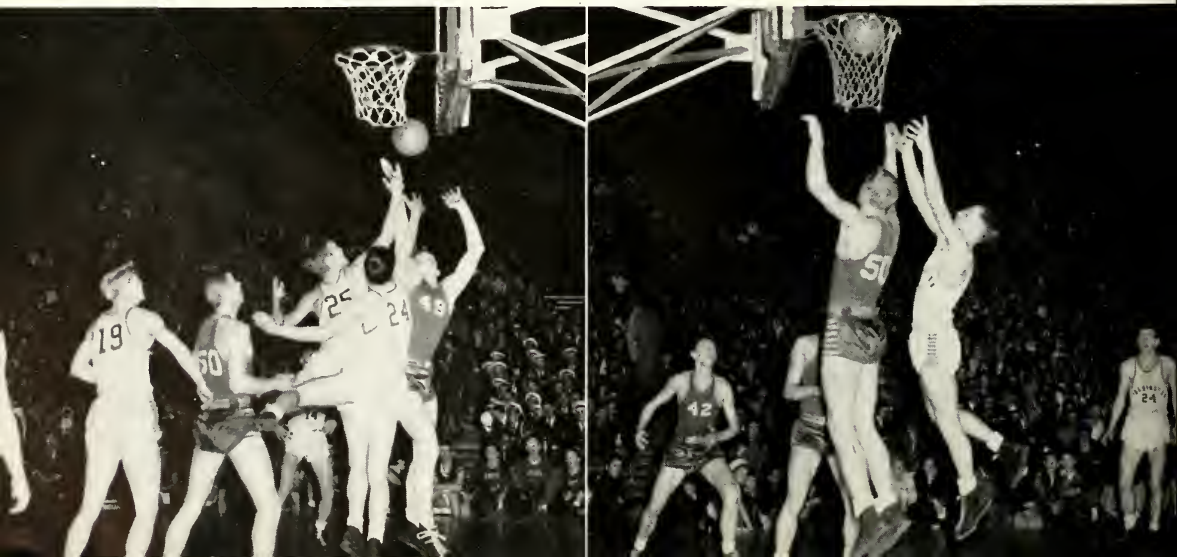

The Blue Imps, under the tutelage of Roy V. Aberson, concluded a successful 16-game season with 13 victories. The Rhinies bowed to Cathedral, Broad Ripple, and Howe, but later rose to defeat these same squads and place second in city standings behind Howe, whose only defeat was administered by the Demon yearlings. Ed Gasper and Chuck Keever spearheaded the squad, while Jim Horton, Gene Rogers, Dud Burge, and Harry Levinson combined with them to make one of the most potent frosh aggregations in many a year.

TRACK

Coach Don R. Knight sounded his track call late in February, although several cinder aspirants had been practicing in the track gym class since the beginning of the spring semester. One hundred seventy-five Shorridgers, including seven of last year's lettermen, answered the first call. Besides these, three cross country letter winners also bolstered the Blue cinder squad. Another big factor was the return of several top-notch competitors who were held out of action by last season's injury jinx.

Because the Annual went to press several weeks before the beginning of the current track season, the record of this year's trackmen was not available.

The thinlies had quite a reputation to live up to this year as they had concluded one of the best seasons in their history in 1944. Besides winning five dual meets, the Blue cindermen, paced by lanky Bill Nugent, emerged victorious in the Southport Relays. After losing a 2½-point decision to Tech in the City Meet, they copped the Sectionals, downing Tech by a single point and thus qualifying nine men for the State Meet. Nugent and Stuart earned blue ribbons in the 440 and broad jump respectively, and the mile relay team was also victorious. In the State Meet the following week, this relay, composed of Tom Cox, Park Snyder, Tom Gable, and Bill Nugent, placed second to Manual in a thrilling race.

Pacing the Blue thinlied in the dashes this year were Bob Beam, Ken Wark, Dick Sutton, Remy McKean (all lettermen), and J. B. King. Park Snyder and Tom Gable paced the quartermilers. Snyder and Beam also excelled in the hurdles with Bob Wade. Heading the broad field of distance men were Don Hinkle Jim Oberholtzer, Gordon Hoffmann, and Bill Steers.

Captain Larry Stuart returned to dominate the broad jump event. Bill Kegley, kept from competition last season by an appendectomy, was prominent in the high jump with Bob Phillips and Bob Wade. Kegley also put the shot, along with Don Hueber, Bill Afflis, and Art Wilson. Wade topped the list of pole vaulters.

Cross country

Twenty-seven Shortridgers answered Coach Roy V. Aberson's first call for cross country early in September. Paced by Gordon Hoffmann, Jim Oberholtzer, and Bob Crose, the hill-and-dalers emerged victorious in five of eight dual meets and placed third in the City Meet.

The Blue harriers inaugurated their season by taking all five firsts against Warren Central, 15-40. Hoffmann, Perrine, and Bud Leiber crossed the finish line together. Following this, the Satans squeezed by Lawrence Central, 26-29. Bill Sedam, of the Bears, broke the tape, while Hoffmann and Oberholtzer snared second and third, respectively, for Shortridge.

The Harriers' first defeat was sprung by the potent Anderson trackmen, led by the great Bob Gray. The Indians snared five of the first six places in trouncing the Satans.

The Demons bounced back with a 22-33 triumph over Washington. Hoffmann, Oberholtzer, and Crose finished one, two, three, for the Satans.

Once again the Blue Harriers tasted bitter defeat as the Howe Hornets nosed out the Demons by a single point. Dave DeWitt broke the tape for Howe.

Oberholtzer set the pace by twice finishing first as the Demons downed Manual and Broad Ripple in preparation for the City Meet. But the Blue hopes were shattered as they placed third behind Tech and Howe. Oberholtzer copping third place and Hoffmann sixth for Shortridge.

Tech wrote fins to the season by handing the Harriers their third defeat of the season.

Hoffmann, Oberholtzer, and Crose were awarded the block "S" for season performances.

GOLF

Coach Simon Roache sounded his first spring golf call with a "Spring Vacation Tournery," by which he intended to select the members of the varsity golf squad. Twenty-two boys signed up to participate in the tournament.

Tournaments scheduled by the Blue linksmen were as follows: April 23, sponsored by Cathedral; May 7, by Howe; Shortridge, on May 14; and May 28, by Tech.

Girls' Sports

Twenty-two girls reported for the annual girls' tennis tourney, which was won by Martha Wagner as she defeated Doris Fechtman 5-7, 6-2, 6-4, in a triangular play-off, with Pat Bond as the third person. Pat fell to Doris Fechtman 6-4, 6-4. Martha Wagner received the tennis monogram.

The girls' hockey teams were hopelessly deadlocked for a while, but Team I, captained by Mary Nicholson, finally edged out Team II, captained by Dotti Friedland, 2-0, 1-0. Thus the final standings were: Team I, lost 1, won 2, tied 2; Team II, lost 2, won 1, tied 2.

In basketball, Team I, under the direction of Mary Nicholson, captured first place and the basketball monogram. Team III, captained by Ann Brigham, was runner-up, while Team II, captained by Dotti Friedland, took third place. The final standings were: Team I, won 8, lost 2, tied 1; Team III, won 4, lost 6, tied 1; Team II, won 3, lost 8, tied 0.

As we went to press, volleyball had just started. Mary Nicholson, Ann Brigham, Priscilla Bender, and Sandy Sanders were chosen to captain the four teams.

Mrs. Kathryn Swan sponsored the tennis, basketball, and volleyball tourneys, while Miss Rosemary O'Hara sponsored hockey.

The Shortridge R.O.T.C., under the leadership of Staff Sergeants Leseston Riley and Ferrell B. Wiggins, has won high recognition among the units of the country. In the 1944 Federal Inspection, the Shortridge High School R.O.T.C. and band received an Honor Rating and also won the first place in the Fifth Service Command. In September, 1944, the R.O.T.C. was reorganized with Cadet Major George Bulau as commander. Extensive training of the cadets in extended and close-order drill reached its climax at the Armistice Day Parade, in which the unit won second place.

When it became necessary for the unit to be indoors, various classes were formed. Rifle marksmanship was then taught, giving each pupil individual training on sighting and aiming, positions, and trigger squeeze. Each student fired on the rifle range several times, and from each company the best marksmen were selected for the Rifle Team. This team participated in interschool competition. Various other classes on Military History and Policy, Sanitation and First Aid, Military Courtesy and Discipline, and Infantry Drill Regulations were formed. Particular emphasis was given to the different phases of Map Reading.

In early January the R.O.T.C. Patrol was formed to assist the incoming freshman boys. At a meeting of the R.O.T.C. Patrol and Big Sisters, the True Blue Club, sponsored by Mrs. Della Thompson, donated the necessary money needed to secure blue and white honor ribbons for first place in the Federal Inspection.

On February 13 the Parent-Teachers' Association held a special "Fathers' Night" meeting, at which Allied and enemy war equipment was displayed in the cafeteria. Grenades, machine guns, rifles, carbines, and Garands were among the various weapons collected by R.O.T.C. pupils and also loaned by Fort Harrison.

In early March each cadet was issued an Enfield rifle, with each student held responsible for its upkeep. When the weather was fit, drilling was resumed again. Much time and training were put forth so that Shortridge might again come out on the top at the Federal Inspection.

Music

The Music Department has had an unusually busy year. To begin music activities, the Shortridge band, under the direction of Robert J. Shultz, provided music and intricate marching formations at six football games, and also played for three home basketball games. They participated in several outside functions, two of which were the Armistice Day parade and a Sunday afternoon concert. Here at Shortridge, they rendered their services to the History Pageant auditorium, the annual Federal Inspection, and an auditorium in which they were joined by the Butler-Jordan Philharmonic Choir and the Butler University Choir. Their year was highlighted by the annual Sweatermen's Concert, which was presented February 21 in honor of the twenty-two Seniors who received the monogrammed sweater for six semesters' service in the "A" band. Soloists who featured this program were pianist Marti Knauer and trumpeter Bill Best.

"By far the most superior" was the rating given the Shortridge orchestra by a local newspaper reviewer following the All-City Music Festival in which the orchestra participated. At Shortridge, the orchestra, directed by Will F. Wise, played for a Christmas program, several auditoriums, P.-T.A. meetings, the Spring Festival, and Commencement. Various small orchestral groups furnished music for P.-T.A. teas, the All-School Play, and the Senior Play.

Mrs. Geraldine T. Clippinger's choral group, the Girls' Glee Club, presented a Christmas auditorium with the orchestra, in addition to Yuletide programs at the First Presbyterian Church and at the Soldiers and Sailors Monument. The "Hiawatha" cantata was presented by the group for the Central Christian and Broadway Methodist Churches. Also on the list of this year's activities was participation in the annual May Music Festival and Good Friday services at the First Baptist Church. Moreover, the club sponsored a broadcast for the Shortridge Hour, a program presented over WISH by different Shortridge groups.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Laura C. Moag, groups from the Shortridge Choir, Boys' Glee Club, and Girls' Chorus provided music for servicemen in programs given at Billings Hospital, Camp Atterbury, and U. S. O. centers. Entertainment for P-T.A. groups, church organizations, and school auditoriums were furnished at various times by these choruses. Besides playing an active part in the Junior Vaudeville, these groups and Mrs. Moag planned and presented the "Freedom of Worship" tableau in the History Pageant. Singing at Vesper Services for Seniors on the Sunday before graduation brought their year's work to a successful conclusion.

DAILY ECHO

Daily Echo

In the 45th consecutive year of publication, the Shortridge Daily Echo, under the direction of a new sponsor, Miss Jeanette Grubb, has upheld its traditional aim of quality. At the beginning of the year, special classes for cub reporters were conducted by editors Phyllis Jay, Ann Lindstaedt, Marge Brink, Shirley Rae Evans, and Shirley Rose. The classes were designed to instruct underclassmen in the fundamentals of journalistic writing. As a result of the inauguration of these methods, many Shortridgers tried out for staff appointments. Rigid qualifications in regard to meeting assignments were imposed, not only to attain a position on the staff but also to keep it. The Echo, besides having a successful year, has been one of the most representative of Shortridge organizations.

Correspondence Class

The Journalistic Correspondence class covers all important Shortridge news for the Indianapolis papers. Assignments for the year were as follows: Ann Lindstaedt, Indianapolis Star city desk; Paul Goldstein, Star sports desk; Bob Mintz, Indianapolis News; Lois Ramsey, Indianapolis Times; Shirley Rae Evans, North Side Topics. Beverly Keller assisted with the Echo clipping file.

Buy-A-Plane Drive

Shortridge students topped the record of all Indiana high schools, and, as far as they know, of all United States high schools, in the Buy-A-Plane drive of May, 1944. The three weeks' campaign resulted in a sale of $1,302,224 in bonds, $66,000 of which the students themselves bought. The sum total was enough to purchase two flying fortresses in addition to the pursuit plane, which was the original goal.

The drive, in honor of Shortridge's famous graduate, Admiral Raymond Ames Spruance, was conducted by the War Activities Committee, with Al J. Kettler in charge of the campaign and publicity. It featured a Victory Queen, Anne Metzger, who was crowned at the mammoth Bond Rally held May 19 at the conclusion of the campaign; a Mystery Man, Homer E. Capehart, who agreed to match all student bond purchases to the amount of $50,000, and whose identity was revealed the evening of the rally; and a parade of various units participating in the competition for Victory Queen.

One of the bombers which Shortridgers bought, named the "Shortridge Blue Devil," is now paying Shortridge's "respects" to Tokyo.

Christmas Echo

Another excellent edition of the Christmas Echo was achieved this year under the editorship of Ann Lindstaedt. This is an annual magazine consisting of short stories contributed by members of the Fiction Club and features by regular Echo columnists. "As Ye Merrie Olde Faucette Drips," by Ann Dieter, "A.M.," by Marge Brink, Janet Trickey's "Etchings," and "Theme Songs," written by Anne Lytle, were the Christmas articles.

A feature with pictures of Shortridge teachers taken during their high school days and nursery rhymes about each was this year's specialty.

The cover was designed by Ada May Koontz.

Those assisting with the publication were Mary McClure and Mary Frances Dittrich, literary editors; Peggy Yockey and Phyllis Jay, feature editors; Ann Lytle and Pat Lange, club editors; Mary Catherine Brewer and Cici Hendricks, poetry editors; Farroll Speake and Jim Lodwick, humor editors; Bill Libby and Bob Mintz, boys' sports editors; and Lois Ramsey, girls' sports editor. The art editors were Pat Smith, Dot Harris, and Jeanne Trulock.

The business manager was Alan Parrish, while advertising was managed by Jack Henderson.

The Class of 1946 began their Junior activities when they went to the polls December 13 to elect officers. The successful candidates were Jim Jordan, president; Deeda Hensley, vice-president; Jo Ann Summers, secretary; Warren Bennett, treasurer; and Jeanne Snodgrass, Vaudeville chairman. The Junior Policies Committee, a group organized for the first time this year, was composed of students who indicated that they would like to help with the Junior activities. This group and the class officers handled the affairs and business of the class.

On the nights of February 9 and 10, in Caleb Mills Hall, the curtain went up on the 1945 edition of the annual Junior Vaudeville. About four hundred people, both on and behind the stage, combined their efforts to produce a vaudeville of near-professional caliber. Under the leadership of chairman Jeanne Snodgrass, and with the help of Walter C. Geisler and Mrs. Nell Merrick Thomas, class sponsors, it was possible to bring forth the talent in Shortridge and focus it in the spotlight. The production played before capacity houses both nights, and with the proceeds from the venture, the class presented the school two one-thousand-dollar bonds.

The first act, "Jota Espanola," sponsored by Dorothy Schonecker and Charles Scott, presented a variety of Spanish music and dances enacted in an elaborate patio setting. A fashion promenade highlighted Jeanne Trulock's "Fashion Fantasy," which was the second act to perform before the spotlight. "A Wee Bit o' Scotch," the third skit, was accented by original and synthetic Scotch songs and dances. Charlene Buttz, Dottie Friedland, and Debbie MacDougall were chairmen of the act. John Rawlings and Ginny Black worked together to produce "My Mummy Done Ptolemy," a satire based on life and times in old Egypt. The final act, "Musical Revue," was perfected by chairman Glenn Speckman. The act furnished a grandiose finale of popular music as Shortridgers like it.

Mary Bishop edited the program with the help of Charles Efroymson, who handled the advertisements. The attractive cover, featuring the Vaudeville chairman's picture on a background of blue and white music notes, was designed by Priscilla Bender.

Junior Vaudeville

The intermission acts presented the "Lasso Lassies," Patty Barton, Ruth Reed, June Bird, and Marilyn Snyder; an accordion specialty by Patty Joy; impersonations by Janet Polson; piano versions by Bill Stephenson; and the Barbershop Quartette, featuring Jim Brock, Victor Mercer, Neal Randolph, and Phil Bonham.

Junior Vaudeville

On Friday night, individual awards went to Betty June Oakes, melodic vocalist of "Fashion Fantasy," and to Benny Barth for his drum renditions. Those cited on Saturday night were Joan Robinson, for her throat warbling in "A Wee Bit o' Scotch," and John Rawlings, for originality of performance in "My Mummy Done Ptolemy."

Intermission act winners, on both Friday and Saturday nights, were Janet Polson, for impersonations, and Bill Stephenson, for his versions of chopsticks.

"A Wee Bit o' Scotch" was judged the winning act for both nights. This act, colorful throughout because of a vivid variety of Scotch plaids, was highlighted by Robbie Robinson in a tap routine; an authentic version of the "Highland Fling," performed by one of the chairmen. Debbie MacDougall; original jive arrangements by Bob Smith and Charlene Buttz; a comedy routine, "The Glasgow Gliders," featuring Neal Randolph and Joan Pile; warbling and toe dancing by Joan Robinson and Dottie Webb, respectively; and the animated antics of the Sir Harry Lauders, five boys clad in kilts, with three acrobats. The finale, including the entire cast, made a colorful picture of Scotch plaids.

Social Clubs

The unsponsored social clubs of Shortridge are an invaluable means of combating juvenile delinquency. Gathering in each other's homes, club members are bound together in a feeling of warm friendship and combined interests. Besides promoting congeniality among members, many clubs have undertaken war projects such as rolling bandages and baking cookies for the USO. Simple addition: Cakes plus potato chips plus girls equal one club meeting.

Well, what d'ya know? These energetic gals mix education with relaxation.

The brains at work. Big plans are under way at a dance committee meeting.

Looking Thru the Lens

with Bob Camp

With trusty camera in hand, Bob Camp begins his day of giving people the "birdie."

Ah-h-h! It's hunch time, but that isn't all. Shortie Richardson puts aside the food to make with the gossip. "Well, girls, I didn't mean to tell you, but . . ."

Betty Thompson nearly knocks herself out while Camp dangles from a chandelier to snap this bird's-eye view.

The Chem III's are working so hard. Bobo Burnett becomes the human guinea pig as the rest of the class perform their individual "experiments."

"Oh, now surely you're jesting," says Billie "Peepers" Elf. In the back, Rosie Walker seems to prefer finger foods to milk shakes.

This is no time for study. Just ask the boys; they'll tell you.

Out of the desk of last year's editor: Sharon "The Look" Smith dazzles bystanders as Carolyn Costin, efficient vendor of cokes, does some pleading. "Come on, Ed. That'll be one thin dime."

"Lessee now. How about a hamburger with the 'works' and a coke?" Ah yes, this is the life.

Ginny Cordill takes a breather as the mob demands more and more cokes. Ever dauntless, John Rawlings continues to dish them out.

"Now look, Tubby, it's this way . . ." begins Don Hinkle, mixing business with pleasure. But Bill Kegley and Jack Thompson are too busy getting their vitamins to bother with anything else.

It's lunch time at a local hangout. A look of total relaxation covers Bob Adams' face as Jane Trimpe talks on and Mary Bishop provides background buzz.

Debate

A special interest in current problems was aroused in the student body this year when the Shortridge debate team debated the timely question, "Resolved: That the Legal Voting Age Should Be Lowered to Eighteen Years." Approximately a thousand students attended the first debate which was scheduled with Rushville High School in Caleb Mills Hall. Coached by Clarence C. Shoemaker, a strong affirmative team, composed of Betsy Ancker and Peggy Yockey with Helen McLane as alternate, and an equally strong negative team, with Bernard Landman and Don Tabbert, were victorious. The judge was Dr. Orvin F. Larson, acting head of the Speech Division at Indiana University.

Winning both debates against Speedway High, the Shortridge team took first place in the district. This debate was judged by Professor Myron Phillips, Director of Debate at Wabash College.

By virtue of this victory,

Shortridge entered Regional competition with Wiley of Terre Haute. Again both Shortridge teams won their debates. Professor Charles H. Walters of Butler University, Professor Myron Phillips, and Dr. Orvin P. Larson were judges.

With four other Regional winners, Shortridge's debate team entered the State Finals, held at Manchester College, March 24. In the morning session, the local team was eliminated from State competition by Horace Mann of Gary.

Mary Frances Dittrich was the Shortridge contestant in the American Legion Oratorical Contest.

Betsy Ancker, ace debater, begins her affirmative at the first debate of the year held with Rushville in Caleb Mills Hall.

Auditorium

Music, drama, and humor contributed to the auditorium shows of the year. The program planning responsibility rested with the capable auditorium chairman, Betsy Ancker.

Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, noted music critic, highlighted the early auditorium sessions with an entertaining talk and demonstration. Also listed in the music category was the program presented by the Butler-Jordan Philharmonic Choir, Butler Choir, and Shortridge Band. Another successful auditorium was achieved when the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra presented a concert for the students. The school's own orchestra likewise contributed to the year's programs.

Once again music was the theme for an auditorium program when the Shortridge Choir furnished music for the Thanksgiving and Christmas auditoriums.

Prior to the Tech football game and the Sectional basketball games, unique and unusual pep sessions were staged.

An impressive pageant based on the American freedoms, presented by the History Department, and a Senior Play teaser supplied the dramatic portions of the programs.

Outstanding speakers, one of whom was Dr. Thurman B. Rice, secretary of the State Board of Health, also helped make the auditorium programs this year exceptionally entertaining and educational.

"For Pete's Sake"

"Well, for Pete's sake!" could be heard ringing throughout the halls for approximately three weeks last fall. The reason was that the All-School Play was in production, and its name was . . . "For Pete's Sake." This year's play, presented Friday night, December 8, can be said to be one of the most successful dramatic ventures ever given at Shortridge. There was no teaser of any kind; yet standing room could have been sold easily.

"For Pete's Sake," written by Jay Tobias, was ably directed by Miss Eleanor Dee Theek, coach, and Jeanne Snodgrass, student director. The members of the cast made their appearance in this order: Miss Sarah Pepperdine (Mary Jo DeVatz), Jasmine Jackson (Alice Rosenfield), Cicero Murglethorpe (Jack Denison), Peter Pepperdine (Herschel Stroyman), Bill Bradshaw (Thornton Klos), Thorndyke "Mugsy" Murglethorpe (Leonard Wild), Mrs. Georgiana Clarkston (Julia Brake), Nadine Clarkston (Wylma Hensley), Peggy Clarkston (Phyllis Augustin), Malvina Potts (Marian Sterrett), John Boliver (Neal Randolph), and Dupont Darby (Richard Rettig).

The play, a three-act comedy, revolved around Peter Pepperdine and one of his little white lies which grew to enormous proportions.

The backstage crews, termed "the finest production staff one could have," were headed by the following: Tom MacConnell, stage manager; Pat Bond and Pat Barton, properties; Helen Dunlop and Pat Gruber, furnishings; Verda Young and Ellen Fuller, sounds; Fat Welch and Mary McClure, make-up; Frances Matkin and Jody Carey, prompters; and Mary Martha Turpin and Jeanne Trulock, usher chairmen. The pit orchestra was under the direction of Will F. Wise.

Student Board

Government of, for, and by the people is typified by the Student Board. Composed of representatives from each home room, it is truly a democratic organization with officers elected at the beginning of the year. Betsy Ancker is president; J. B. King, vice-president; Dottie Friedland, secretary; and Pat McGeary, treasurer. The faculty sponsor is Mrs. Charlotte Ryker. In the fall, its constitution was amended to the effect that if a member was absent more than two consecutive meetings, he would be automatically dropped from the membership.

The efforts of the board are devoted to furthering all worth-while phases of Shortridge life. Their project inaugurated at the beginning of the year was a safety campaign. Through their efforts, two extraordinary pep sessions, one preceding the Shortridge-Tech game, the other prior to the Sectionals, were presented during auditorium sessions.

Among its most successful ventures was the annual Bluebelle-Uglyman Dance. Committees for the dance were the following: tickets, Jim Lodwick; publicity, John Rawlings; orchestra, J. B. King; awards, Pat McGeary; refreshments, Lucille Brown and Ann Hensel; clean-up, Tom Gastineau.

By carrying on the War Stamp sales in their respective home rooms, Board members made it possible for the Minute Man flag to continue to wave over Shortridge.

Senate

Shall we adopt Esperanto, the universal language? Shall we restrict presidential terms? Shall we build an underground tunnel to Siberia? Many interesting and important problems help make the Shortridge Senate one of the most active and enthusiastic of clubs. Each Friday the members, named for present United States senators, introduce, pass, or veto the various bills and amendments as practiced in the United States Senate.

This year, as in other years, an impeachment trial, using the exact procedure employed in an actual impeachment, was held. The year was climaxed by the traditional banquet at the last meeting. Miss Minnie Lloyd, Miss Annalee Webb, and Dr. J. Dan Hull were guests of the senators at this time. Also at this banquet, the Outstanding Senatorial Award was made to the outstanding Senior senator.

Membership is open to all Shortridgers who are interested and wish to join. Under the sponsorship of Miss Annalee Webb, Shortridge's oldest organization is succeeding in its efforts to develop better speaking qualities and the knowledge of parliamentary procedure.

Stamp Club

"Stamp collecting is fun!" has been the cry of Stamp Club members. Under the sponsorship of Arthur Shull, the club has been achieving its three main purposes: satisfying the collecting urge, advancing the educational features involved, and encouraging thrift and sound investments. To accomplish these objectives, the club has several contests and auctions as well as speakers. Officers for the year were Tom Lynch, Don Tabbert, presidents; Bloor Redding, Don Tabbert, vice-presidents; and Richard Moore, Michael Churchman, secretary-treasurers.

Horizon Club

To give community service, improve themselves, and have good social times have been the goals of the Horizon Club, sponsored by Miss Mona Jane Wilson. Members are affiliated with the Camp Fire Girls and joined with other Horizon groups once a month in an all-city meeting. Two overnight trips to Camp Delight featured their year. Most of the members devoted at least two hours a week working as helpers in St. Vincent's Hospital. Officers are Betty Bertrand, president; Mary Bertrand, vice-president; and Nancy Boutwell, secretary.

History Club

"Keeping up with the world" could be applied to the projects of the History Club—the news bulletins in the window outside Room 313 and the Shortridge War Scrapbook. Club programs consisted of historical quizzes, book reviews, and discussions of current topics. Miss Minnie Lloyd spoke to the members on "Postwar Planning." On the social side the club had a Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Danna Lansley Huffman, sponsor, and enjoyed a spring picnic.

Officers are Pauline Prather, president; Joanne Reese, vice-president; Mary Louise Giles, secretary; and Katie Clark, treasurer.

Boutwell, N. Owens, J. King.

True Blue Club

The welcoming committee to outsiders and incoming freshmen is embodied in the True Blue Club. This group is considered tops by everyone in the school, especially by the freshmen, for it sponsors the Big Sisters organization. Each semester every new girl is introduced to Shortridge by a Big Sister, who acquaints her freshman with the building. The club also plans and issues invitations to a mixer for all "out-of-towners." Another service to the school is the necrology work done by the club. Mrs. Della Thompson is faculty sponsor, and Peggy Yockey is president.

"Helping Others" is the maxim of the Junior Red Cross Club. Besides gathering money for the Senior Red Cross fund, the representatives also filled and sent twenty-five Christmas boxes to children in foreign lands. They made Christmas more enjoyable for children in Indianapolis, too, by renovating dolls and giving them to the needy.

With the cooperation of the sewing and art classes, the club has contributed garments to the armed forces and covers for fifty braille books to the blind. Members have also collected playing cards and over fifteen hundred magazines for army camps. Mrs. Opal G. Conrad sponsors the club.

Chem Club — Row 1: Mr. Johnson (sponsor), J. Martin, A. Jose, J. Wolpert, E. Goodwin. Row 2: W. French, M. Finley, E. Sherwood.

Chem Club

"Variety" describes the activities of the Chem Club. In October, members journeyed to the Fairmont Glass Company. Walter French, John Martin, and James Wolpert demonstrated fire extinguishers in the Junior Academy of Science at Butler. Window displays that included a diagram of the robot bomb, the chemical gardens, and an analysis of wood, were set up by the club. Programs have consisted of lectures on hydroponics by Alvin Jose, and on lens grinding and chemical gardens by Walter French. Fall officers were John Martin, president; Ruth Stoepelwerth, vice-president; and Ruth Lacey, secretary-treasurer. Spring officers were Walter French, president; Marcia Finley, vice-president; Betsy Goodwin, secretary; and Alvin Jose, treasurer. William Johnson is sponsor.

Math Club

Puzzled over something? Well, you wouldn't be if you attended one of the Math Club's special "Braintwister Puzzle" meetings. This club, sponsored by Miss Ellen Ocker, has solved many a curious numerical problem.

The club has been visited by Robert L. Green, M. H. Ahrendt, Miss Ruth Allerdice, and Walter C. Geisler as speakers. A Christmas party featured the year's activities.

Officers for the year were Richard Deitch, James Hoover, presidents; James Hoover, Betty Wrege, vice-presidents; Annabelle Church, Pat Ayers, secretaries; and Joanne Reis, Roxann Truitt, treasurers.

Math Club—Row 1: J. Pierce, K. Cox. Row 2: J. Hoover, S. Goldberg, Miss Ocker (sponsor), S. Sussman, M. Kulwin, B. Churchman, B. Bertrand, H. Snellenberger, P. Sofios, M. Churchman. Row 3: C. Jackson, J. Reis, B. Wright, R. Truitt, B. Wrege, P. Ayers, O. Elzie, C. Hood, I. Fang.

Philateron Club

An exciting fall tennis match, spirited hockey, and basketball games were among the things which occupied the time of the Philateron Club this year. A bicycle hike started the year's activities, and a series of pot-luck suppers highlighted the fall semester. In the spring, club members decided that 900 points, instead of 1,000, would be necessary for a girl to win a letter sweater.

Five hundred points, gained in extra-curricular athletic activities, make a girl eligible for membership. Officers this year were the following: Mary Nicholson, president; Priscilla Babbitt, vice-president; Evangeline Andrews, treasurer; and Ann Brigham, secretary. Miss Rosemary O'Hara is sponsor.

German Club

Preserving German music and other advancements which will outlast the war has been one of the achievements of the German Club. Under the sponsorship of Miss Louise Reiter, the meetings have included playing informal games and singing German songs. In the social line a fall wiener roast and a spring picnic have been enjoyed by the members.

Officers for the fall semester were Ruth Stoepelwerth, president; Harry Hollingsworth, vice-president; Erica Hess, secretary; and Eugenie Nicholson, treasurer. Those for the spring semester were Patricia Sehr, president; Suse Samuel, vice-president; Marie Fleischer, treasurer; and Carol Thoms, secretary.

Hi-Tri

The Hi-Tri girls have extended their influence ever as far as Russia, since they have prepared many kits for Russian War Relief containing anything from needles and pins to soap and dried soup. At present they are planning cartoon scrapbooks for service men.

But they mix fun with their work, for they are interested in the Tuck-Apache project with members of the Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A. of other high schools in the city. They meet every Friday for dancing and swimming.

The officers are Mary Belle Parks, president; Clarice Krampe, vice-president; Mary Russo, secretary; and Beverly Gunderson, treasurer. The sponsor is Miss Waterbury. Their supper meetings are held at the Y.W.C.A. every other Wednesday.

Girl Scouts

Children at the Riley Hospital think of the Girl Scouts as Santa Claus! Every year the girls make stuffed animals and dolls and repair old toys to fill stockings, thus creating a more pleasant Yuletide for the children.

The girls easily live up to their motto, "Be Prepared," with a widely diversified program under the leadership of Mrs. Rachel Schumacher. This includes Junior and Senior Red Cross Life Saving classes and a series of talks by stylists and experts on cosmetics.

Officers of the group are Geraldine Harman, president; Mary Louise Friedmeyer, vice-president; Lois Hare, secretary; and Barbara Windt, treasurer.

Hi-Tri Club — Row 1: Miss Waterbury (sponsor), D. Kuester, B. Hubble, M. Russo; Row 2: C. Krampe, P. Peterson, E. Gundersen, M. B. Parks, C. Buttz. Members not present are B. Abell, L. Agnew, D. Radio Workshop

Approximately once each month Shortridge is responsible for the 'High School Hour,' which is broadcast weekly by Indianapolis high schools. The function of the Radio Workshop is to assist with the preparation of the Shortridge programs, which present some activity or department of Shortridge. The work of club members is to collaborate with department heads in writing the scripts and in producing the shows. The group has also been in charge of general public address announcements at Shortridge.

Officers of the club are the following: Ann Lindstaedt, president and publicity chairman; Mary Jo DeVatz, vice-president and program chairman; and Laura Lindley, secretary-treasurer.

Croquis Club

Hoosier artists of the future make up the Croquis Club, which is sponsored by Miss Jane Messick. In the fall, Marian Miner was elected president; Doris Johnson, secretary; Geraldine Harman, vice-president; and Anita Diggle, treasurer. In November, the club visited the Indiana Artist Club Exhibition, following which Mr. Black explained the science murals in the Chemistry Department. Movies and slides of Michelangelo's works, and the visit to the Contemporary American Exhibition at John Herron were highlights of the year. In the spring, Ada Mae Koontz was president; Darrell Conner, vice-president; Jeanne Lindley, treasurer; Doris Johnson, secretary; and Mary Lou Laughlin, Margaret Bell, and Barbara Windt, program committee.

Fiction Club

Interest in writing was stimulated throughout the school by Fiction Club members in their annual tryout contest for club memberships. As its special literary project, the club had the "Christmas Echo," to which members contributed eleven stories. Pitch-in dinner meetings were held once a month, and the traditional candlelight initiation climaxed spring activities. Miss Florence Guild and Mrs. Mary Dye Beach were speakers.

Miss Ruth Armstrong, sponsor, was assisted by Jack Henderson, president; Ann Lindstaedt, vice-president; Margaret Mason, secretary; and Ann Lytle, treasurer. Members who left early for colleges and the armed services were Jerry Asher, Phil Bonham, Bob Chevalier, Paul Goldstein, Tom Hendrickson, Herbert Seidensticker, Bernard Landman, and Lawrence Henderson.

Drama League

In harlequinade or tragedy, the members of the Drama League are equally at ease. Given grease paint and footlights, these Shortridge Thespians are always ready with a supply of real talent. This year the League sponsored the All-School Play, "For Pete's Sake." As a social sideline, the League entertained with a Christmas party, and in the spring they gave a party for outgoing Seniors and new members. Miss Eleanor Theek is sponsor; Mary Jo DeVatz, president; Jeanne Snodgrass, vice-president; Geraldine Harman, secretary; Thornton Klos, treasurer; and Julia Brake, try-out chairman.

Los Amigos

That current historic events have intensified friendly interest in our Spanish speaking neighbors in South America is evidenced by the programs of the Spanish Club, now in its second year. One of the speeches of the year was a talk on Mexico by Knight Campbell, a Shortridge student who spent several months in Mexico. At their annual Christmas party, a yuletide play was presented in Spanish. The proceeds were used to purchase Spanish records for the Spanish classes.

Officers for the year were the following: Joanne Reese, president; Mary Louise Giles, vice-president; Phyllis Augustin, secretary; Marnita Dietrich, treasurer; and Pauline Frather, program chairman. Miss Lorraine Maranville sponsors the group.

Library

"United Through Books!" This was the title of the Library Club radio show, written by Sally Jo Hubbell, president, and Mrs. Esther Cavanaugh, sponsor, as well as the slogan for Book Week. Other participants on this WISH High School Hour program were Dotti Friedland, Laurel McPherson, Pat Peat, and Joan Stadler. A series of book reviews which appeared in the Echo each week, and every day during Book Week, constituted another project. Other activities of the club included Hal-lowe'en, Christmas, and Valentine parties, and a spring picnic.

The purpose of the club is to provide library and reference workers with an opportunity to know each other and to know the library resources. Other officers are Rosemary Walker, vice-president, and Mary Russo, secretary-treasurer.

S. P. Q. R.

Good times, a background of the Latin language, and a study of Latin classics are the purposes of the S.P.Q.R. (Latin Club) as reorganized this year by Miss Emily Dodson and Miss Jane Curry. All Shortridge students of Latin may become members.

Entertaining programs insure good attendance at the meetings. For instance, the "Ides of March" program, given at the meeting on March 15, featured a talk on Caesar's life, the rendition of Mark Antony's Funeral Oration, and a playlet entitled "The Ides of March," written by Eugenie Nicholson and acted by pupils from Miss Dodson's classes. Candy was served for refreshments.

A style show, a spring picnic, and a Roman court trial were other projects being planned for the semester.

S.P.Q.R. members do not have dues. Instead, the officers collect (but not exact) "taxes," the payment of which is optional.

Students in Caesar and in Latin I and II are eligible for membership in the Junior group, while Virgil and Cicero pupils belong to the Senior group.
